Este mes celebramos

mi nuevo despacho!

I moved house over the summer and have enjoyed setting up my new workspace. You may recognise the background wall covered with posters and souvenirs from years of travel and cultural events. I love my little collection of "Meninas" on top of the bookcase. I've added a picture of the amazing Spanish hamper that I received on moving in day; it was perfect timing!

Review of the year!

Brilliant Spanish tutor ... look no further

We made contact with Georgina seven months prior to exams when our son stated he was having doubts he would achieve an A grade. His first choice university offer was 3 A's

We followed the tutoring schedule for the entire period and his recent results were amazing, achieving an A* in every paper, one was 99/100. Beyond the pure academic work it was the regained confidence brought about by the support that was so important, and he carried that through to exam day.

Your child will achieve the best possible grade they are able to with her help and guidance.

I can't recommend Georgina highly enough.

Enfoque cultural

I've booked tickets for "Tango Passions" at the Lowther Pavillion in Lytham St Anne's. I may have to combine it with an Argentinian steak dinner and a glass of Malbec to get me in the mood.

There has been so much new Spanish content on Netflix over the summer, but I have to admit that I haven't had much time to watch TV. I will save it for the cooler Autumn evenings. However, I did watch a visually stunning historical crime drama in French, recommended by one of my adult students called "Été 36"

(Summer 36) which I loved. I didn't guess the ending! Definitely worth a watch.
